

Rusty Foley is an Ordained minister with the Assemblies of God. When asked, Rusty would tell you that, "I grew up in the church! I love the church and have a burning desire to see the local body of Christ in a state of health and growth."

Rusty and his wife, Tish, began ministry in 1985, serving as youth pastors for 14 years. Over the following 23 years, they served in the role of lead pastors.

During that time, Rusty served the Ohio Ministry Network by ministering to the Network Affiliated pastors in the Greater Columbus Area. He also served the Network as the Presbyter for the Greater Columbus East Area of Ohio.

In 2022, the Foley's retired from pastoral ministry and took positions with the Roever Evangelistic Association through The Roever Foundation. They now manage Eagles Summit Ranch in Westcliffe, Colorado, as they steward the incredible property that God has given the ministry. They also minister to the veterans, active military, and their families during sessions at the ranch, and they love ministering to ministers from their local communities and those who travel to the ranch.

In June of 2024, Tish graduated from the Texas University of Theology with her Doctor of Ministry in Christian Counseling, and Rusty graduated from TXUT with his Doctor of Ministry in Theology. They believe that these degrees will be great blessings as they minister to all those who The Father brings to the ranch and to the churches that invite them to bring God's Word.
